PREMIER WILL USE CRUELTY

(By United Press)

Tokio, Dec. 7.— As premier it was believed here to-day General Count Terauchi will more vigorously prosecute the Korean policy than he pursued as Governor General of that dependency. The desire of the new premier, it was made apparent, was to depopulate Korea of its na- ive born, and as Governor he made life such a burden for the Koreans that many of them left the country. As the head of the cabinet Count Terauchi will have every opportu- nity for harrassing the Koreans.

It is indisputable that the islands of Japan now are to crowded for comfort. There actually is not room for all the people and more terri- tory is imperative. One of Terau- chi's pet projects, it is understood, is to drive all of the Koreans from their country and replace them with Japanese He would cause the Ko- reans to emigrate to Northern Chi- na, and then would offer induce- ments to Japanese to colonize the territory.

5 ARE KILLED IN COLLISION

SATURDAY'S NOT A HOLIDAY IN ARCHBALD CASE

Four More To Tell of Alleged Coal Bank Deal

Washington, Dec. 7.—Twelve of the thirteen articles of impeachment against Judge Robert Archbald, of the United States Commerce Court, were yet to be presented when the fifth session of the trial in the Sen- ate began today Four witnesses, G. A. Richardson, Wm. P. Boland, J. H. Rittenhouse and Richard Bradley were stille to be heard up- on the first article. This concerned Archbald's attempt to buy the Katydid culm bank owned by the Eria railroad at a time when the Erie had two cases pending in his court Richardson who was sick in New York yesterday when his name was called, was to testify to Archbalr' visit to his office in con- nection with the proposed culm purchase by Archbald and E. J. Williams . Richardson is vice pres- ident of the Erie and vce president of the Hillside Coal and Iron Co., owner of the Culm pile

Boland was called to explain the drawing up of the agreement for purchase in which Archbald is re- ferred to only as a "silent partner."

Rittenhouse is the man who made a survey of the culm bank and esti- mated its value at over $20,000 Bradley is a coal operator to waom Archbald and Williams tried to sell the Katydid at $20,000.

The second article dealing with the aid given by Archbald to an atempt made to sell stock of the Marian Coal Co., to the Lackawan- na railroad at a time when a suit of the owners of the Marian com- pany against the railroad was be- fore the interstate commerce com- mission and subject to review by Archbald's court, was expected to bring outu today a sharp clash be- tween the house managers and the prosecution and attorney Worthing- ton for the defense .

BELLEFONTAINE MAN BURNED TO DEATH

Bellefontaine, O. Dec. 7 —The plant of the Buckeye Carriage Body factory was totally destroyed by fire Friday entailing a property loss estimated at $25,000 with in- surance of $13,000 Forty men are thrown out of employment

John A Horn, oldest employe of the factory, perished in the fire. He was on the second flood at work when the fire started and it is pre- sumed that he became confused and failed to get out His body was taken from the ruins shortly after noon, being found in the cellar

INAUGURAL BALL

PROMISES TO BE GREATEST IN HISTORY OF OHIO

Columbus, O, Dec 7 —An an- nouncement that a committee of 15 has taken in charge the arrange- ments for the inaugural ceremonies of Governor-elect James M. Cox, presages, it is said, one of the greatest inaugural balls and attend- ant ceremonies the state has ever known

An assistant committee of 50 has been secured for the ball on the evening of the inauguration and most of the state militia will be mobilized in this city on that date. Arrangements also are being made to bring here marching clubs from all over the state

GOT AN EYE FULL

Marion, O, Dec 7 —Tansie Wil- liams, a widow, filled with a desire to see the ways of men in Marion's gay "white way," rigged herself out in one of her boarder's suits and enjoyed the sights until arrest- ed for parading in men's attire. She pleaded guilty and Mayor Claude Walters fined her.

JAIL YAWNS FOR SCORES OF POLITICAL BOODLERS IN JEFFERSON COUNTY

Expected That Half-a-Hundred Prominent Men Will Be Indicted at Steubenville—Attorney General Hogan on the Job.

(By United Press)

Steubenville, O. Dec. 7 —The state's attorney plans to make Jef- ferson county a horrible example to other counties in the state, where political machines and election cor- ruption fay flourish.

Rural counties that for years have been in the grip of gang con- trol, declare the prosecutors, fay take their warnings from the prosecutions now being started here under the Kimble Corrupt prac- tices act passed as a result of the Adams county ballot bartering ex- pose in which 2,000 voters were disfranchised.

With six present office holders and victorious candidates in the November election under indict- ment for corrupt practices, as well as one ward worker indicted for perjury, the Jefferson County in- vestigation has forely started.

That at least fifty more indict- ments will be returned and that several of the candidates-elect will be barred from taking office, is the prediction today of assistant attor- ney general Jos McGee, who goes o Cincinnati to conduct the grand jury probe into the Cincinnati Trust Company, of which George B. Cox was President Six hun- dred names are listed for sub- poenaes to testify next week.

Witnesses testifying have given names of others they thought could tell of corruption. Voters and workers from the outlying district —men who cofe to Steubenville but once or twice a year—will be called to the court house. After they have testified, deputy sheriffs will return to their homes with them, and bring back others.

There is likely to be some dis- franchisement of voters The jury will inquire into the report that the representative of a candidate visited a farmer, conferred with him, gave him $40 and then saw the farmer turn over $1 a piece to twenty negro laborers whom he instructed to vote for the candi- date furnishing the money. The farmer, it is said, kept the other $20 for himself

There is considerable pity here for the indicted men.

John G Belknap, for instance, was elected Probate Judge and in- dicted for giving D W. Call, a mill worker, a $28 shotgun as a re- ward for his efforts. Belknap came from Carroll County about three years ago His father is a well-to-do farmer.

Then he was made Republican county chairman He married one of the best-liked girls in Steuben- ville Then he ran for the judge- ship It is reported that his can- didacy cost him $5,000, although his expense account showed only about $250, and this account has disappeared from the board of elec- tion figures.

Others indicted are Richard Gilson, Steubenville postmaster; Hugh Patterson, Republican coun- ty chairman Samuel Stark, county treasurer-elect Ira Blackburn, law- yer, Fred A Stone, Republican de- feated for nomination for probate judge, and Richard Kramer, form- er employe in the county auditor's office, accused of perjury.

NOT ALARMED AT MONEY SHORT AGE

Washington, Dec. 7.—That sec- retary of the treasury, Franklin MacVeagh, does not consider the stringency in call money in New York sufficient reason for deposit- ing $20,000,000 more into the Nat- ional banks of the country, was the information given from an authori- tative source in the treasury de- partment today.

The secretary is of the opinion that the stringency is more or less local about New York and as far as the country at large is concern- ed there is no occasion for alarm.

Reform School Boys to Tell About Cruelties

(By United Press)

Lancaster, O, Dec. 7.—Many of the 950 boy inmates of the Lancaster Industrial school, it was announced today, will give testimony before the state board of administration which is investigating secret charg- es against the school authorities. The board will conclude its par- ole work at Mansfield reformatory Tuesday and resume the probe here.

The preliminary examination was brought to a climax yesterday when the board paroled John Brown 13, a Columbus inmate, who is suf- fering from pneumonia contracted after he had been whipped by offi cer Paul A. Wiebe. The parents of the boy, Mr and Mrs. Joseph Brown, are expected to appear be- for the board and prefer charges that their son was unduly beaten and otherwise mistreated in the correction cottage His condition today is precarious.

The boys will be asked to tell their daily routine and punish ments imposed upon them, with the approval of Superintendent F. C Gerlach, and also of the food given them. It is alleged that some o their food is unfit for human con sumption

Heine Zim Possesses "Ze Arteestic Temperament"

In the spring, when George Browne was trying for a job with Chance's team, Zimmerman requested that he be roomed with George at the hotel in West Baden. After one night of George's company Heine countermanded the order, complaining that Browne took three separate and distinct baths between 10 o'clock and getting up time and that the splashing disturbed his slumbers.

Joe Jackson To Buy Farm and Quit Naps

Joe Jackson, Nap slugger extraordinary, is preparing to retire from baseball, according to word from the Jacksons who are spending the winter at Brandon Mill, S. C.

Joe wants more money than the Nap club offers him for next season.

He says he has saved practically all the money he has made out of baseball, and has just about decided to buy a farm near his home.

"I have have always liked farming and believe I can make as much out of it as I could in baseball," says Joe.

PREP SCHOOLS TO MEET.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Washington High School of Portland, Oregon, undefeated claimant of the football championship of the Pacific coast, has accepted a game with Wendell Phillips High, of this city. On their way to Portland, the local team will stop at Boise City, Idaho, on Christmas day. On January 1, the Chicago boys will play at Astoria.

LEADING BASE MOOCHERS

Knockers Camp After Champs

His cleverness will not protect him from the swin of the hammer. He may be able to swish a punch that will canvas a man every time it lands. His ring methods may be perfect, his private life that of the ideal citizen, but the "panning" paragraphs will be his just the same.

Start in with an "idol," John L. Sullivan. John Lawrence was stoned because he didn't fight often enough. Corbett, the critics chirped, was a toe dancer, not a fighter. Come right along up the line and look the title holders over—Jeffries, Gans, Ketchell, Papko, Nelson, Attel, Wolgast and Kilbane. Not one of these but what was scorched from ear to instep for some weakness, real or rumored.

One of the longest routes ever taken for a "rap" was in connection with the late middleweight champion, Standard Ketchel. Champions, past and present, were being discussed at a Reno reunion of sport writers. Ketchel's name came up and for a full quarter of an hour it looked as though the 158-pond king was to come in for nothing but praise, when a St. Louis man shot this shakey shaft of abuse.

"Oh, Ketchel is all right. He's game to the heart and a great fighter," said the Missouri man, "but—well, he is—er—oh, oh, I don't like the flashy clothes the big dub wears."

Army Elects New Captain

(By United Press)

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 7.—The army has elected as its football captain for 1913 Benjamin F. Hodge, who has played left end for two years. Hodge is a sophomore, and 21 years of age. He is the most popular man in the college.

BOWLING

Desperate because of their poor showing against the Van Wert boys Thursdaynight A. C. C. went after Bluffton last night with all sails set and through some of the prettiest and most consistent bowling seen on our alleys for many days took three straight games from our neighbors and finished up with a surplus of 234 pins, a total of 2679 and the best score of the year by a wide margin. Captain Bixel and his team are no mean bowlers by any means and their three very consistent games in the face of the high class work of our boys prove their true sporting spirit. Betts as lead-off man was king bee of the evening with total pins at 593 while Busick got busier than the rest of the bunch in the third session and cleaned up for high score with 231, he also being second high total with 557 while Barrington was third with 550. Dr. Neiswander showed best form for the Blufftonians with a total of 541, bowling three even and classy games. The score:

Bout Between Welsh And Ritchie Urged

ENGLAND'S LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMP WANTS AMERICAN SPOILS.

(By United Press)

New York, Dec. 7.—The Garden Athletic club has opened negotiations for a ten round bout between Freddie Welsh, England's light weight champion and either Packey McFarland or Willie Ritchie who recently won the world's title from Ad Wolgast. Since Ritchie's manage has domanded a $10,000 guarantee for a bout in this city it is more probable that McFarland will be matched with the Briton.

Welsh and McFarland have boxed three times, a total of 55 rounds. If Welsh decides to box McFarland he will sail from England next week, so that the bout can be staged early in January.

Has to Say.
The Harvard Clothes Shop.
Lima, Ohio, Nov. 14th.

My answers to your many questions are as follows:

Because you have the latest styles.

What other people ask $20 and $25 for, you sell for $10 and $15.

Because you have several stores and buy in large quantities.

Because once a customer, always a customer.

Because you take pains in fitting.

Because you handle nothing but the best woolen garments.

Because you have the one price to all, $10 and $15.

HOW ABOUT THE BUTTER TRUST?

If you really want to reduce the high cost of living why not start in on the butter item. You can buy a pound of "Purity" or "Pride" Butterine equal to Creamery Butter and your dealer will throw in a peck of potatoes for what you have to pay for Creamery Butter. "Purity" retails for 23c and "C. C. Pride" at 27c. Almost all grocers and meat dealers handle these two brands. Try some of it with your Saturday order and convince yourself that you don't have to patronize the butter trust in the future. Refuse substitutes.

A Sleeveless Coat of Erm... With Which a Toque, ... and Muff of White Fox ... Worn. A Very Effect... Winter Mode.

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women.

By LADY DUFF-GORDON ("Lucile")

THE photographs I am sending to-day show what may be expected in fine furs this Winter. A glance at the pictures will show you how wonderfully effective these creations are and, of course, they will be extremely fashionable.

The sleeveless coat wrap in ermine shows a wide stole effect which is thrown over the shoulders, the ermine tails forming a border effect at bottom of the coat. This is completed by a white fox toque with white osprey and white fox boa and muff. Nothing could be more beautiful than this.

The last picture shows a one-piece ermine scarf wrap which is draped as required. A beautiful ermine muff is worn with the wrap and completes this unusually effective costume.

And now a few words about the prevailing millinery of the season.

The position of the aigrette determines—at sight—the date, or, at any rate, the up-to-dateness, of the hat which it adorns, and also the degree of smartness and success which it achieves. And so I would have you take careful note of the fact that, instead of being always aggressively upstanding and outspreading, as it was wont to be, the aigrette very frequently and fashionably now droops downward in a manner which would be almost dejected—not to say dowdy!—were it not for the supreme skill which gives to this less assertive poise, a chic piquancy all its own.

In fact, the more unexpected and unusual the position of the aigrette, the more notable and desirable does the hat become, so that eccentricity is being carried somewhat too far for prettiness sometimes. It is amusing to find, too, that, while forests and clumps and "halos" of aigrettes are still being shown, and worn, it is also correct—and chic—to merely display in the centre of a small almost severely simple black velvet shape, two upward curving osprey strands, shadowy and ghost-like—and frail and fascinating things, which, however, let me tell you, demand a considerable and substantial outlay in cash for their acquisition, as, naturally, being brought into such prominence, they must be of absolute perfection and unusual length.

Often, too, aigrettes and ospreys will, like the even more favored ostrich feathers, be combined with fur—which is, perhaps, skunk, and banded about the crown. While then, again, ermine is frequently used with black velvet and aigrettes to secure and accentuate the black and white contrast scheme, which still takes precedence in popularity of all the more vivid colorings. For example, a black velvet hat, will be provided with an enormously wide larme of pure white ermine, which makes the most effective possible background for the soft blackness of the great osprey which sweeps along the left side, being held in position there by the quaintest arrangement of little clustered ermine heads, fringed with the black-tipped tails. In another somewhat similar and equally smart model the brim is entirely lined with black velvet, so that, its curve being wide and beautiful, a wearer blessed with clearly cut features, a good complexion, and fair or deeply burnished hair, may be pleasantly sure that all these good points are being brought into fullest prominence by their silhouetting against the sweep of black velvet. Outwardly the brim is bordered with tail-less ermine, and fastened against the velvet crown by a circlet of roll ermine heads is a big brush aigrette.

Black and white plush are brought together into close and charming contrast in any number of the smaller shapes, and somehow the softness of the fabrics makes this contrast all the more attractive and becoming. One of the new hats which I cordially approve is outwardly all of the white plush, the round "bowler" crown being just banded about with a prim folded and tied satin ribbon. But then, to make up for this primary simplicity, there is the most glorious Paradise mount to sweep its pale yellow strands at the left side above the shimmering brown and green plumage of the head which is fastened against the black of the little upturned brim. And now—another contrast and chance of choice for you—imagine a close-fitting Directoire bonnet of black velvet, just showing a glimpse of inner blue against the hair, its predestined and pretty companions for life (or at any rate for the season) being a long and supple stole of black velvet, all edged with skunk fur, while fastened low down on one corner is a big and beautiful rose, whose outer petals of dull gold tissue unfold about a central softness of skunk, even the two half opened buds also show... glimpse of the fur. A great... hanging muff, too, there is, ... repeats this novel and pretty ... ming so that, as you may imag... the three together can be depe... on to transform into smartness ... simplest of costumes. A good ... of these "triplet" sets are being ... pared for Riviera wear, and as ... cial prettiness, rather than ... protectiveness, is thus aimed ... closely massed blossoms are used ... the making of hat and tie and ... For instance, a delightful closely ... ting hat is entirely covered ... shaded violets, the little brim ... ing of purple velvet which gives ... manent shapeliness to the airy ... creation being only just visible ... neath the final fringe of deeply ... flowers.

MY SECRETS OF BEAUTY — By Mme. LINA CAVALIERI, The Most Famous Living Beauty

Mme. LINA CAVALIERI

No. 202—DAYS WHEN YOU DON'T LOOK WELL

THERE are days when, no matter with what beauty the world has credited us, we shrink from the image our mirrors fling back at us. One of your American novelists told how transcendently lovely a typewriter girl looked at times to her employer, who was falling in love with her, and how plain and insignificant to others. The author was a bachelor. Nevertheless he knew that women are like the moon. In the first quarter both give but a hint of their full attractiveness. There are days when we look our best, days when we look our worst, and intermediate days.

On the days when we don't look well we usually are not well. Our most imperative need at such times is rest. The girl who goes early to bed and sleeps round the clock, or at least for nine or ten hours, awakes feeling and looking better. This is an object lesson in the truth that to look well we must feel well, and to feel well we must be so.

Many a woman has lamented her going off and wept farewell tears to departing youth when really what she needed was an extra hour's sleep every night for a week.

There are secondary aids that assist this primary one in the work of making the most of our appearance on the days when we are not looking well.

Perhaps all the weariness and listlessness and hopelessness of your mood seems to settle in your eyes. They look pale and dull and old, and the eyelids look dark and wrinkled and lifeless.

You can liven both by placing a witch hazel bandage over them. To avoid questions as to what a witch hazel bandage is let me explain now that it is a piece of muslin folded several times and saturated with witch hazel. Lay this loosely over the eyes for as long a time as circumstances will permit. If the bandage dries moisten it again with witch hazel.

Perhaps the skin of your face is very pale, as though every drop of blood had been drained from it, and the fact that your stock of vigor is below par is shown by the dry texture and loose condition of your skin.

Refresh it by giving it a cologne bath. Pour a few drops of cologne over a piece of gauze and pat the face lightly with it. This will coax the blood quickly to the surface. Or soak a square piece of flannel in olive oil and place it over the face. The skin absorbs this oil, and in a short time looks much fresher.

Should you, despite your tired, bloodless aspect, have to be seen in public, bathe the face in tepid water, using handfuls of almond meal, wet with a few drops of benzoin instead of soap. Then dash cold water upon the face. This soon calls back the color that has forsaken the visage.

If on this bad day of yours you are shocked at the appearance of a new network of fine lines about the eyes and lips, don't fancy they have come to stay. Lie down, relax your muscles and rest as completely as possible. During the last half of this rest pat cold cream into the parts of the face where the tired lines appeared, then slowly iron them away in the opposite direction from that in which they appeared. Rub horizontal lines in a perpendicular direction, and vice versa.

If your lips are pale, massage them gently, using cold cream freely on them to bring back their color.

If you are forced to be mingled with others while you feel "dead tired" don't allow the muscles of your face to sag or your eyes to grow listless. Recall your best expression, summon it, and keep it. In the words of the stage folk when the curtain rises a second time upon an effective tableau, "hold the picture."

Love Symphony.

ALONG the garden ways just now
I heard the flowers speak;
The white rose told me of your brow,
The red rose of your cheek;
The lily of your bended head,
The bindweed of your hair;
Each looked its loveliest and said
You were more fair.

I went into the wood anon,
And heard the wild birds sing,
How sweet you were; they warbled on,
Piped, trill'd the self same thing.
Thrush, blackbird, linnet, without pause,
The burden did repeat,
And still began again because
You were more sweet.

And then I went down to the sea,
And heard it murmuring, too,
Part of an ancient mystery,
And made of me and you:
How many a thousand years ago
I loved, and you were sweet—
Longer I could not stay, and so
I fled back to your feet.

DOMESTIC BOMBSHELL

THERE is a tale told in every big house-party in Ireland about an incident in the seventies. A peer and peeress in their own country house were seated at lunch with their daughter, who was not on the best of terms with them, when she broke a long silence by observing:

"Mother, I was married this morning."

The peeress bore the news with a severe aspect, and observed, in chilling tones:

"At least, before telling such a private matter, you might wait until Jones (the footman) leaves the room."

"But, mother, it is James I married!"

Tableau.

Wages.

GLORY of warrior, glory of conquistor, glory of song,
Paid with a voice flying to be lost on an endless sea—
Glory of Virtue, to fight, to struggle, to right the wrong—
Nay, but she aimed not at such: no lover of glory she:
Give her the glory of going on, still to be.

The wages of sin is death: if the wages of Virtue be dust,
Would she have the heart to endure for the life of the worm and the fly?
She desires no isles of the blest, no quiet seats of the just,
To rest in a golden grove, or bask in a Summer sky:
Give her the wages of going on, and not to die.

Johnnie Still Wonders.

Mamma: "I'm surprised at Johnny!"

Johnny (thoughtfully): "I wo... if you'll ever get used to me, ma... You're always surprised at me."

Nipped in the Bud.

Father (angrily): "If my son ma... that actress, I shall cut him off ... lutely and you can tell him so."

Legal Adviser: "I know a better ... than that. Tell the girl."

Nine Chances.

Dixon: "Well, his patients are ... tunate."

Hixon: "How's that?"

Dixon: "They each have nine...

YOU MUST BE ACTIVE TO BE HEALTHY

By a Physician

ACTIVITY is necessary to the perfection of the vital forces. It accelerates the blood circulation. It stimulates the digestive system. It augments the action of the stomach, liver and bowels. It increases the respiratory action, more thoroughly oxygenating the blood through a greater lung expansion.

It regulates the appetite by stimulating the gastric and salivic secretions. If there is not enough activity too much blood goes to the nerve centers; and the entire muscular, digestive and circulatory system gets out of order.

Inaction Hurts

If you have any difficulty in believing this try staying in bed for a couple of days and then see how well you can stand up. Your legs totter, refusing to carry the weight of your body.

Sit in your chair all day bent over desk or your sewing and you will find by nightfall that your body is cramped and painful when you try to move.

Standing still, sitting still or lying still for a great length of time is deteriorating to the whole body.

In this day when economic conditions are drifting us further and further from natural conditions when manual labor was a part of almost every person's life it is essential that this matter of activity be made a subject of study.

Make Yourself Act

If there be economic conditions why a man or woman should follow a sendentary occupation then it behooves that person to bring into his or her life some sort of regular, forced activity.

Beware of lazy idleness. It will have its effect on your whole system. It brings on degeneration of the muscles and the internal organs; sometimes resulting in an unhealthy accumulation of fat and sometimes in internal adhesions. In some costitutions it results in shrinkage and premature old age. The human machine will only run a certain length of time without rejuvenation.

Activity—motion, which brings all the muscles into play, accelerates the circulation and shakes up the internal organs is the natural REJUVENATOR

CINCINNATI MEN IN BAD

Cincinnati, Dec. 7.— A number of prominent Cincinnati men in addition to the millionaire named by Madeline Albers, are to be involved in the federal investigation started as a result of disclosures made by Miss Albers, a Cincinnati girl, who alleges she was held prisoner in a hotel here by White Slavers.

"Miss Albers has given us the names of prominent Cincinnati men", said assistant district attorney Walter Kimbrell, "whom she has met, . She seems anxious to save other girls from the ruin she suffered. She also gave us the names of Cincinnati girl friends whom we shall summon as witnesses."

POLICE THINK MOWERY CRAZY

Suffering from a genuine case of delirium tremens and still obessed by the hallucination that a wild mania is pursuing him, Herbert Mower,y 207 south Elizabeth street, who police thing is insane, is a prisoner in the padded cell at headquarters and o%cials are admittedly up against it as to what disposition should be made of the man. Chief Vermillion said Saturday morning, that Mowery might be sent to the institution for epileptics and the feeble minded at Gallapolis.

Early Friday evening, deluded by the idea that a wild man was chasing him, Mowery leaped aboard and east Wayne street car nd terrorized passengers, plunged through the vestibule, the inner compartment and knocked several window lights out. He ran amuck until Patrolman Billstein and Harrison clambered aboard the car and arrested him.

Prior to his disastrous leap to the street car, Mowery had tele phoned police from the Brentlinger saloon that a wild man was pursuing him.

"He's on my trail, and I want help," he shouted hoarsely over the wire to Desk Sergeant Waters.

No attention was paid to the wild call until the deranged man sprang aboard a street car. He is now in jail, no disposition having been made of him.

Less than six weeks ago, Mowery broke a diptheria quarantine at his home on south Elizabeth street and created a riot. Relatives say he is feeble minded. Police claim that his condition s caused by protracted sprees which he goes on spasmodically

Council Holds Conference to Consider many Published Rumors.

That the C. H. & D. railway company does not even contemplate the removal of their car shops from this city as has been newsed about for several weeks, was the opinion expressed by trustees in charge of the $33,000 bonus given the company in 1897, following the disastrous fire which destroyed their local headquarters, in a conference with members of city council and City Solicitor Walter S. Jackson, late Friday evening.

"There is nothing to indicate such a change", said one of the old trustees at Friday's conference, "save the newspaper rumors which has been given currency. The railroad has shipped several of its old broken-down machines away, but are making arrangements to replace them with newer and more modern mechanism."

Council did not seemed satisfied with this explanation, however and it is quite likely that a inquisition committee will be appointed at next meeting to confer with the company officials with a view to getting some definite answer. Those who attended the conference were: Aldermen McGrievy, Keville, Shook, Flinchbaugh, Custer, Standish, Bryan, and Clapper, Trustees Edward Christen, Thomas Duffield, James O. Ohler, T. K. Jacobs, City Solicitor Jackson and W H. Duffield. There were originally seven members of the board of trustees. C. A. Metheany is dead and T D. Robb and John Crumrine were not present.

Money Value of Woman.

If you are a married woman, and were asked to tell just what you were worth in hard cash to your husband, what figure would you name? The question is not a fanciful one by any means, but has been a subject of judicial consideration.

It was this way: The wife of an Iowa farmer bought a gallon of what purported to be kerosene, but which was afterward shown to be 21 per cent. gasoline. When the woman used some of it to start a fire with the stuff exploded, and she was burnt to death and her three children were seriously injured. The woman's husband sued the dealers for damages, and the jury awarded him $25 for the loss of his wife and $299.71 per child on account of injuries.

The defendants evidently thought that a woman was not worth $25, for they took an appeal from the verdict. The learned court, however, declined to look at it in that light, and the judgment was affirmed.—New York Mail.

Should Working Girls Spend Their Entire Wages on Dress?

By Dr. SIMON N. PATTEN, University of Pennsylvania

WERE it not for the fact that the girls who comprise the industrial classes crave the very best things in this world the sociological problem would be difficult to master. Every girl who earns her own living wants the BEST THAT MONEY CAN BUY.

IT IS NO EVIDENCE OF LOOSE MORALITY WHEN A STENOGRAPHER EARNING $8 OR $10 A WEEK APPEARS DRESSED IN CLOTHING THAT TAKES NEARLY ALL OF HER EARNINGS TO BUY. IT IS A SIGN OF HER GROWING MORAL DEVELOPMENT, AND THE WELL DRESSED WORKING GIRL CONSTITUTES A TREMENDOUS INFLUENCE FOR GOOD, AND SHE IS THE BACKBONE OF MANY A HAPPY HOME THAT IS PROSPERING UNDER THE INFLUENCES THAT SHE IS EXERTING OVER THE HOUSEHOLD.

It is as IMPORTANT FOR HER TO BE NEAT AND WELL DRESSED as it is for her to be accomplished about her work. Her employer is the first to notice her clothes.

By Dr. ANNA SHAW, Suffragist

PERSONALLY I don't believe in overworking young women to help maintain their families. But the family and the girl are not always to blame. It is the ECONOMIC CONDITION OF A COUNTRY. Of course there are times, when the father is ill or dead, when it is quite proper that a girl should work to keep the home together when the support of the family rests entirely on the mother.

The whole purpose of LIFE IS NOT MERELY TO EAT AND DRINK AND WEAR PRETTY CLOTHES; it is to enjoy the stars, the sunshine, green trees, the birds and the love of home and family. The young girl who has to support her family has not vitality enough left to enjoy the beauties of life.

BUT I KNOW OF NO TEACHING MORE IMMORAL THAN THAT WHICH SAYS THE MOST DESIRABLE THING ABOUT A WOMAN IS HER WEARING APPAREL. SUCH AN IDEA IS DEGRADING TO BOTH WOMAN AND MAN.

The Satterthwaite lot, situated at the northeast corner of the public square and extending along the south side of Sugar alley from the square to the first alley east of the square, has been leased by Miss Adelia Satterthwaite to D L. Sherwood, proprietor of the Walk-Over boot shop, who will proceed at once with plans to erect a modern brick building on the property. The term of the lease is fifteen years.

The deal was formally closed last evening and Mr. Sherwood stated to the News today that he would proceed as soon as possible to have erected on the property a thoroughly modern two-story brick building which will be constructed for business purposes. The lot has a frontage of 25 1-2 feet on the public square and extends to a depth of 125 feet along Sugar alley opposite the Hotel Waldo building. The new structure will be full two stories throughout and will cover the entire lot. The front room on the lower floor will face on the public square and will be especially arranged for shoe store purposes. In this room Mr. Sherwood will install his boot shop and he gives assurance that it will be one of the finest and most modern in the middle west In the rear of this room and fronting on Sugar alley will be three additional business rooms which will be for rent in other lines of business Mr. Sherwood has not yet decided as to the nature of the arrangement of the second floor Mr. Sherwood came to Lima and opened his present store, which is situated in the Lima House building, in September, 1907. AN INTERRUPTION

By ANNABEL BRINSMADE

Preparations were being made for a funeral in the Margot family. The body of Betty Margot, aged eighteen, was to be buried at 11 o'clock, and it was now 10. A great deal of sympathy was shown the family, for there were very sad circumstances attending the young girl's death. In fact, it was considered a case of suicide.

About a year before Betty began to show signs of despondency. She had left school and was ready to take a social position among the young people of the town in which she lived Her mother, partly to divert her from her condition of mind, did what she could to induce her to do so. Betty did not refuse to go among those of her own age, but when with them, instead of being the bright, cheery girl of a year before, she was listless. The young men and maidens who had grown up with her endeavored for awhile to draw her from her lethargy, but, finding their efforts futile, at last gave up trying.

The family physician was, of course, consulted. He talked with Betty, asked her a great many questions, prescribed a tonic to be taken "three times a day before meals," but told her mother that he could find no organic disease. He thought that change of scene might be beneficial, but the Margots could not afford to take the patient away. Besides, she said she didn't care to go away The doctor suggested that there might be a young man in the case, but Mrs. Margot declared that her daughter had never shown any preferences for any of her male acquaintances. To this the doctor replied that first love on the part of a young girl from sixteen to twenty was apt to assume very singular forms. He had treated cases of supposed physical malady which eventually had turned out to be simply lovesickness. One of his patients had shown signs of a breaking down in health simply because she could not make up her mind between two suitors and had finally eloped with a third, to whom her parent had no objection whatever.

One morning when the good lady went into her daughter's room with the usual toast and coffee—she would not permit Betty to arise before 11 o'clock—the room was empty. The bed had not been slept in. The frightened matron rushed from the room, calling her daughter wildly. The household, Betty excepted, responded, and eventually the whole town was roused.

The day passed with no word from the missing girl. She must have departed in the night, for no one had seen her go. Every village in the neighborhood received telephone messages describing Betty's personal appearance and inquiring if she had been seen. All her relatives far and near were notified. Not a hopeful word came from any point.

Mrs Margot, after she became so far calmed as to express an opinion on the cause of her daughter's departure, said she believed that Betty's mind had been affected through some disease which "that stupid doctor" had failed to discover. The people of the town had many and diverse opinions. Mrs. Griffin, across the street, who had heard Mrs. Margot—an impatient, excitable woman—scold her daughter, averred that the latter had been driven away by cruelty. Some of the neighbors—old maids or married women who had adopted dogs in lieu of children—said that Betty had not been properly brought up and had gone to the bad.

One day a fresh impetus was given to these conjectures by the discovery of a body of a woman in the river It was bloated beyond recognition, but it was about Betty's height, and the hair was about the same color as hers. The consensus of opinion was that it was her remains; that in a fit of temporary insanity she had escaped from home and drowned herself. The sight was so awful that the parents were persuaded not to look at it An undertaker prepared it for burial, and this brings us to the beginning of our story, which is also the end.

Persons were assembling at the Margot home to pay their last respects to the dead. The clergyman had arrived, the undertaker was going about with soft tread giving directions in a modulated voice, when a young man and woman turned a corner and caught a view of the hearse and carriages standing before the door The lady sank on the man's bosom with a gasp; but, recovering, the two pursued their way to the house of the funeral The clergyman was mentioning some lovely traits of the deceased when the chief mourners uttered an exclamation of surprise and made a bolt for the hall, where stood the newcomers.

"Oh, Betty!" exclaimed both father and mother in a breath

The obsequies were discontinued on account of the appearance of the object for which they were held, and a great relief, a great joy, reigned in their stead. This was Betty's explanation:

"George met me when I was a schoolgirl, and we loved. Then that horrid Kate Baxter came between us, and for a long while I was afraid she'd get him away from me. But one day he wrote me that she had been telling lies about me, and I concluded to go and give her a piece of my mind. The result was that George and I thought we'd better be married. So here we are."

mit county court of common plea... at Akron, Lillian Freiberger, 1... year old Lima girl, yesterday to... a lurid story of how she was lure... from the home of her mother, M... Mary Freiberger, of this city, to... house of ill fame in Akron seven... weeks ago upon promise of empl... ment and enticing tales of a "go... time" and ample wages.

Whether or not James Bello and his wife, Winifred Bello, a Spencerville girl, indicted under the name of Winifred Saunders will be sent to the state penitentiary or will have their freedom, was being decided in Akron Saturday afternoon. The couple are charged with pandering for white slave traffickers.

Both Belo and his wife are Italians and came formerly from Lima where they met Lillian Freiberger and induced her to leave her mother and go to Akron Lillian says they told her of the nice things she could buy with the money she could earn working in the rubber factories of that city. She said they also told her she could earn enough money to help her mother who was then working in a south side restaurant of this city.

It was at a south Main street restaurant of Lima, she says, she first met Bello. At the time of the meeting he was accompanied by Winifred Saunders and another man named James Lorenzo who tried to kill her at her home several days ago when an attempt to bribe her was scorned. They persuaded the mother to let the young girl visit Akron.

"When we got to Akron," Lillian said on the stand "we stayed at a rooming house. Lorenzo acted as my beau and Bello as Winifred's husband. One day, Bello said we were going to move He took me to a resort and told them I was 18 years old That night I wanted to go home, and I told Bello I did. He told me to shut up, and said if I didn't he would throw acid in my face and kill me. I didn't dare say anything, so all I did was cry, and cried almost all the time I was there, too."

Later, it developed, Nina Allard owner of the resort, discovering that the girl was only 16 years old, notified Akron police and caused the arrest of the Bellos. Police raided the place, arrested them, and returned Lillian Freiberger to her mother in this city.

Both Mrs. Freiberger and her daughter, were witnesses in the case and are still in Akron. Juvenile Officer Thomas Phalen who identified the girl is also a witness They are expected home tonight.

ABOUT SANTA CLAUS.

He is a low-down, ornery hound,
The meanest cuss that ever was,
Who thinks it's smart to go around
And tell the kids there's no Santa Claus.

– Cincinnati Enquirer

That little couplet sizes it up exactly. From time immemorial, and as James Whitcomb Riley would say "Long 'Afore We Knowed Who Santa Claus Wuz," there have been some brainless enough to want to tell us. It isn't smart, nor is it sensible, to rob childhood of this one great pleasure—the anticipation of the Santa Claus visit. It has never afforded anyone a pleasure to take pleasure from another, and especially from an innocent child.

Look back upon your own life and reflect how, when a little tot, almost before you could speak the name and certainly before you could spell it, you awaited eagerly the coming of Santa Claus. Remember how, if you can remember back that far, you sat in front of the open fireplace and after father had put on a "back-log" for the night and the flames leaped high in the chimney; as you sat by mother and gazed into the ashes and there in your fancy could picture the reindeer and the sleigh, and the load of toys; fancy that and down in your heart you will admit that about the meanest person you ever met was the one who shattered those dreams by showing you there was no Santa Claus.

You can't go back to those days, though you would give all you possess to do so. You can't climb out of a snowy bed early Christmas morning and in your little bare feet scurry to the chimney place to find a mite of a stocking filled with goodies from the store-room of Santa Claus, goodies that he had left while you were resting in Blanket Bay. You can't do that again—but you can, by keeping silent make other little hearts as happy as your own heart was in those days.

The same Lord that looks after the little ones isn't going to hold us accountable for the little white fib we tell to keep Santa Claus in existence. He isn't going to call us to account for using that dear old mythical legend of the reindeer and the sleigh to make some little heart happy. On the other hand we are inclined to believe He will mark that up to our credit.

Don't explode that sweetest of childhood fancies now. The little one will learn soon enough let the learning be prolonged as much as possible. We don't get in after-life the sweetness that was ours in childhood—so lets go on and have old Santa Claus forever, and not steal one drop of sweetness from one single little soul.

THE INAUGURAL DATE.

With the approach of another inauguration congressional interest is revived in the proposition to change the date to a day less likely to be visited by a "flareback." But as there are suggestions that it be tied up with the one six-year-term proposal, its fate is dubious. An examination of the records is reported to disclose that we have had three good days for the inaugural ceremony since 1873. Cold high wind, snow and wind, sleet, rain and cold, snow, cold, gale, cold drenching rain and blizzard quite eclipse the fair and cold, clear and fine exceptions.

Mr. Wilson's intimation that he will be satisfied with whatever arrangements are made, even limiting the March 4 ceremonies to the actual inauguration, and postponing the parade and the ball to the last Thursday in April, has given another turn to the discussion. Washington fears that the parade would not draw the crowds and business. That, however, is not of moment except to Washington. The important point in Mr. Wilson's remark is the idea separating the inaugural into the essential and non-essential. If that can be done, it can be readily seen that there is no need for changing the date, because the oath can be taken and the inaugural speech delivered with just as much effect, so far as the country at large is concerned, and a great deal more comfort for the participants, indoors. It would seem a much simpler solution to postpone or abolish the purely spectacular "coronation" functions than to retard the actual inauguration to suit the non-essentials. The occasion would gain greatly in dignity and democracy.

Our esteemed contemporaries all through the state are having a great deal of fun over the controversy with regard to the inaugural ball. And no wonder, for it is about the funniest situation that has appeared for sometime in Ohio politics. To the humor of it all, some of our exchanges are unconsciously contributing by assuming that the ball is something in which Columbus is selfishly interested and from which there is a sinister purpose to exclude all who do not belong to the select circle of the capital city's society.

The Georgia negro who went to the scaffold singing: "I Don't Know Where I'm Going, But I'm On My Way," has probably reached a place where he can sing "Home Ain't Nothin' Like This."

The storm cloud is due to break in Dayton. The Burns detectives have been there for two months—just seven weeks longer than should have been necessary to uncover a sensation there.

A man dropped dead at Bellefontaine eating a quick lunch. The coroner hasn't determined whether it was loss of time, or the lunch that killed him.

The ministers of St. Louis are going on the streets at night to get the scarlet women to "approach them." Its a bet not one of them will look good to the women.

Andrew Carnegie says he owes eight million dollars. Now we suppose the corner grocer will put him on the black list.

If Woodrow Wilson only knew that Hettie Green is so fond of onions he would bring her back a few from Bermuda when he returns.

Our government is about to install faster presses to print its money. They are needed, for money is entirely too slow getting around this way.

That new rubber hosiery endorsed by eastern society women may be all to the good. But it looks like a bad time to spring it now that Santa Claus is almost due.

Eggs at 40c a dozen—isn't that enough to make a city man want to turn his backyard into a chicken coop next spring?

His worst enemy can not claim that Mr. Taft is playing politics in his present message.—Marion Star.

There will be fully 10,000 suffragettes in the inaugural parade on March 4. Now can you blame Mr. Wilson for wanting to postpone the affairs?

One nice thing about cool weather. It may run the sleeves a little longer and we'll see fewer "caked elbows."

Happy thought:—When a man says he has no political ambitions it generally means he thinks he hasn't any chance for office.

Someone has said that laughter is day and sobriety is night. Then what time is it when a fellow is just half full?

KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Chicago, Dec. 7.— One man was killed instantly and another was fatally hurt when a tank containing carbonic acid gas was blown to pieces at the soda water plant of the Bishop, Babcock, Becker Co today. Paul Nemec was cut in two by a section of the tank. His brother, Stephen Nemec, was injured internally.

Uncle Andy Says Library Board Must Make Good or He Keeps Cas

Advance Sale for the Orville Harrold Recital Fails To Come Up to the Requirements of "The Lima Carnegie."

Mrs. Chauncey F. Lufkin, chairman of the Library board who has the Orrville Harrold recital in charge, is very much worried because to date it looks as though the Lima Uncle Andy Carnegie, who offered to pay all the expenses of bringing the great tenor here, provided the Board sell fifteen hundred tickets, will not be forced to make good.

This Lima philanthropist strictly stipulated that his offer was automatically withdrawn if the people of Lima did not show sufficient interest in the securement of new books for the Library, by buying fifteen hundred tickets.

To date the advance sale is right around nine hundred tickets, and the Board is six hundred shy. When he learned this the Lima Uncle Andy, whose name is known to but one member of the Library Board 'Phoned that member that he would not contribute a cent if his terms were not lived up to.

Many people do not realize that the Library is forced to buy the same popular books over and over again when they are worn out. The Librarians have mended and repaired 6,000 worn volumnes this year and many of these are now past the stage of usefulness. These books in many instances are standard volumnes and must be replaced with new ones, or dropped from the archives.

It is believed when parents and the philanthropic realize that the purchase of a few tickets means them a difference of at last $1100 to the Library Board, that they will rally to the cause. If less than 1,500 tickets are sold, it means the Board must pay the expenses of Harrold, which will be around $550. Now if they do not have to pay this, it means a saving of $1100, for they will have their own $550 and also the $550 from the "Lima Carnegie."

Every parent and lover of good books should see to it that they buy at least two tickets, and even though they do not wish to attend the Recital, which will be the finest of its kind ever given here, as Harrold is singing in Grand Opera in Chicago now, they can forward their check to Mrs. Lufkin, who will see that their tickets are given to worthy musical lovers.

STEEL SLUMPS AT THE CLOSE

BEET SUGAR GETS A LITTLE ACTIVE—WEEK HAS BEEN IRREGULAR

New York, Dec. 7.—The week has been a rather irregular one, starting with the decision in the Union and Southern Pacific cases, which caused a flurry, then the change for American Can and later the summoning of several governors of the stock exchange to testify in the money probe. The market is apt to be most any way for the next few weeks, certainly it will be unsettled.

At the opening Saturday stocks were moderately active and slightly improved over Friday's trading, off two points mfwyp sbrdlu qppp By 11 o'clock Steel had fallen to 68 1-4, one point under high of the morning. Beet sugar sold off two points during the first hour and held it steadily. Railroads and industrials quit about where they have been since Thursday. The general close of the market was featureless except for steel and beet sugar and was decidedly irregular.

HOTEL MYSTERY IS BEYOND SOLUTION

Cattlettsburg, Ky., Dec. 7.— Coroner Swope today said he was not through with the investaigation of the death at the Alger hotel of Minnie Turner, 20, known also as Jennie Adkins, although late yesterday he closed his inquest temporarily by announcing a verdict of "death from causes unknown".

He ordered the police to hold as a witness the woman who gave her name as Ida Gullett, and her home as Huntington, W. Va., who was found in the room with the body of the Turner girl and with the man who registered as James York, who still is in a critical condition.

ARGENTINE IS RULING MARKET

RUMORS OF DAMAGE THERE REACH THIS COUNTRY—REPORT BUREAU MONEY.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Reports from Argentine seem to be setting the market prices at this time. Rumors of a damaged crop have had effect, but not until the U. S. government sends in its report Monday will it be known just how to go about disposing of the Dec. and May crops. Wheat shows a full export difference of twenty cents below Liverpool. Chicago is still being undercut and corn is dull. This is due largely to a scarcity of cars. Packers are still unable to force hogs to the 7 1-2 cent mark.

At the opening Saturday both crops of wheat went unchanged by closed 3-8 down for Dec. and a half-cent for May. Corn started a quarter below Friday's closed and lost almost a half- cent during the days sales. Provisions held weaker than any time during the week. The general close showed:

Wheat, May, 80 3-8, July 87 3-8; Dec. 84 1-4. Corn, May 48 1-4; July 49; Dec 48 1-2. Oats, May 32 3-4; July 32 1-8; Dec. 31 5-8; Jan. pk. 19.35; May pk. 18.80.

MEN AND MATTERS

James A. Lovett, quartermaster sergeant of the Fourth U. S. A. regiment with headquarters at Little Rock, Ark., and a former Limaite, is here on a visit with his brother-in-law, Plainclothesman Joseph Reed of the city police department. Although Sergeant Lovett's home is in Lima, he has been in the army service for a number of years, having been seen service in Cuba, the Philippines, and the Spanish American war. He obtained a 0-day furlough last week and is taking advantage of the respite to visit Lima.

Another "Confession" Due To Armstrong

SAXBY'S FINE IS CUT DOWN

Umon motion of city solicitor W. S. Jackson, the fine imposed upon George Saxby, proprietor of the Pittsburg saloon on south Main street who was recently convicted on a charge of Sunday selling, was reduced from $200.00 to $100.00 in Mayor Shook's court.

Several weeks ago Saxby was fined $200.00 for a second offense. On behalf of the defendant, Attorney John Klatte appealed the case upon the grounds that Saxby had been convicted under one section of the law and sentenced under another section. The case was remanded to municipal court where the fine was this morning reduced.

Attorney Klatte declared Saturday that he would again appeal the case on error.

"We have beaten them, and they not satisfied," he said. "I'm going to show them that they can't bulldoze me with their browbeating tactics." Solicitor Jackson admitted a technical error but declared that since this had been remedied the sentence was all right.

TURNS UP BRASS TOMB A NIGHT CAPTAIN COPS THE CREDIT.

That the "voluntary" confession of Raymond Cox, the 20-year-old youth, who Thursday evening appeared at police headquarters and admitted that he was guilty of the robbery of 200 pounds of brass from the Lima Brewing company more than a year ago, was impelled by Officer I. M. Armstrong who ferreted out the raid and "fastened" the lad for the crime, was the admission of young Cox in an informal hearing in municipal court Saturday morning. He made the admission to Mayor Shook.

"Armstrong has been after me for some time," said young Cox. "He accused me and forced me to confess to the robbery. He also believed that somebody else had helped me make the haul and for this reason was working quietly in hopes of catching the other fellow. Early Thursday morning, he warned me that if I didn't make an open confession, he would arrest me and that it might go hard with me. I then went to the night police and confessed."

It appears that Officer Armstrong was detailed on the case at the time of the robbery and although of the opinion that the crime was committed by young Cox, was never able to produce sufficient evidence

A week or so ago, he "got the goods" on the lad and was working to "fasten" another young man, when Cox was forced to confess. The officer advised the youth to make a nopen confession to President Seiber of the brewing company and thus avoid a heavy jail sentence.

According to Mr. Seiber the "junk" was taken from the brewery more than a year ago was the dismantled brass of a tank valued at $1,000. Although not of great value in the form of "junk," he declared that the copper was worth fully $400.

Young Cox has been given his freedom under a bond of $25 awaiting the action of brewing company officials, who today show a disposition to prosecute him. No affidavit had been filed against the youth, Saturday afternoon. He stoutly denies that anyone else was in on the deal.

The Bohemian Girl at the Royal Today!

The action of this famous picture opens at the Chateau of Count Arnheim in Austria. While peasants are preparing for the hunt Thaddeus a Polish exile succeeds in escaping Austrian soldiers through help of gypsies headed by Teufelsfuss.

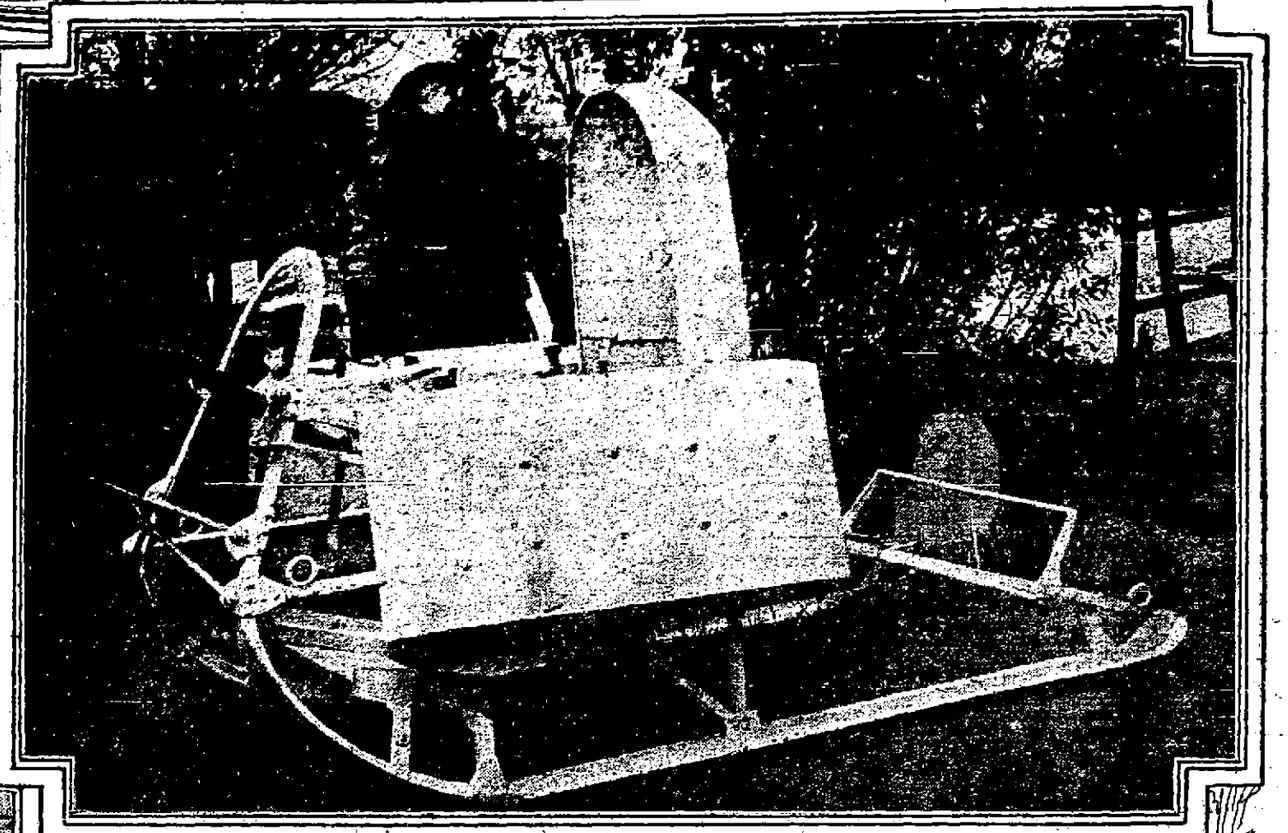
At this time it is discovered that the child of the count has been gored by a stag. Thaddeus succeeds in bringing down the infuriated animal by an expert shot. The count insists on Thaddeus partaking of their feast, and the latter again refuses to drink to the health of the Austrian emperor. Teufelsfuss denounces the count and for this is imprisoned. He escapes, taking the child, named Arline, with him. Twelve years later we find the gypsies relieving of his jewelry, one Florestein, an attache of the count. During this time Arline had been adopted by the tribe and she was betrothed to Thaddeus, who had joined them.

At a Fair, Florestein, observes on Arline's neck a medallion which had been taken from him. The girl is arrested and taken before Count Arnheim, where recognition of father and daugther take place through a scar left on her arm from wound of stag. The count refuses to permit his daugther Arline to meet Thaddeus, but when he discovers that the latter is of noble birth as well as the rescuer of his child, he consents to their wedding.

The startling situations, wonderful acting, amazing climaxes and beautiful scenes keep one at a high pitch from start to finish. With selections from "The Bohemian Girl" opera and at the old admission 5c. Go today sure!!!

Hunting Ancient Treasure in DEEP-SEA AUTOMOBILES!

Taking Hints from Motor Cars, Aeroplanes and Hydroplanes, a German Inventor Makes It Easy and Safe for Divers to Search the Ocean's Bottom for Long Lost Wealth



The new Draegerwerk submarine sledge, with hydroplane stabilizing and steering devices and current guard, in which the divor is towed along the ocean's bottom by a power boat on the surface.

THE fascinations of deep-sea treasure hunting are inspiring inventors to make such explorations less hazardous and more profitable than they have proved heretofore. Aided by the ordinary diving costume, with its metal helmet and leaden boots, searchers for this sort of treasure have accurately charted scores of places where the ocean's bottom is strewn with the precious cargoes of ships that have been wrecked and sunk all along down the ages of the Christian era, and even earlier.

But those heavy leaden boots, and other deficiencies of ordinary diving apparatus, have interfered with adequate success in bringing this wealth of gold and silver, precious stones and objects of antique art to the surface. What was needed was some sort of mechanism whereby the deep-sea explorer could move about with more freedom, continue at his task for longer periods and work in co-operation with power-supplying craft on the surface.

Chevalier Pini, the Italian inventor, had some success with a submarine wheeled craft moving by its own power; but the device was not available below a certain depth, or where the bed of the sea was very uneven. It demonstrated the necessity of some means of constant co-operation between the diver and helpers on the surface, which would mean, also, constant communication with them.

The latter need was supplied some time ago by submarine telephone communication.

Now a German firm—Messrs. Draegerwerk, of Lubeck—have profited by hints afforded by the automobile, the aeroplane and the hydroplane to perfect a deep-sea vehicle for the diver calculated to accomplish pretty nearly everything required of it.

This new device may be described as a sort of automobile, on runners instead of wheels, and having hydroplane attachments whereby its equilibrium can be maintained while the runners are off the bottom. The vehicle has no power of its own, being drawn through the water and along the bottom of the sea by a motor boat on the surface to which it is attached by wire cables, and with whose driver the diver is in communication by telephone.

This deep-sea vehicle is equipped with a "cartridge" which supplies the diver with pure air for a period of three hours. There is a steering mechanism actuated by compressed air supplied from a steel cylinder fixed to each side of the body of the machine. At the back of the diver's seat—instead of in front, as the wind guard of an automobile—is a protective shell or hood to protect him from currents which his motion sets up.

When the diver in his costume—the helmet connecting his ears and mouth with telephone receiver and transmitter—is seated at the steering gear of his machine the whole is lowered over the side of the power boat and proceeds to sink to the bottom. The hydroplane attachments enable him to sink "on an even keel." Arrived at the bottom, if the natural light is too dim, he switches on his current from the power boat above, and has a searchlight, which he can direct from side to side, or up and down.

He has been lowered at some little distance from the charted sunken treasure. In response to his telephone order, the driver of the power boat on the surface proceeds to tow him forward. By manipulating the different hydroplanes he can steer a considerable distance to the right and left of the power boat's course—can even leap over obstructions on the ocean's bottom. For wider excursions he has only to telephone a new course to the power boat driver. Thus he can thoroughly explore, during the three hours of his pure air supply, quite a large area of sea bottom.

Having located the ancient wreck, he can jump out of his machine and proceed with his work of digging it out of the sand or mire, which has so long enveloped it, carrying back a load on his return to the surface. In the meantime he will have directed the placing of a buoy on the surface to mark the exact spot under which the treasure lies. After that it is only a question of tools, time and labor to remove that particular bit of submarine treasure from the plans of other seekers.

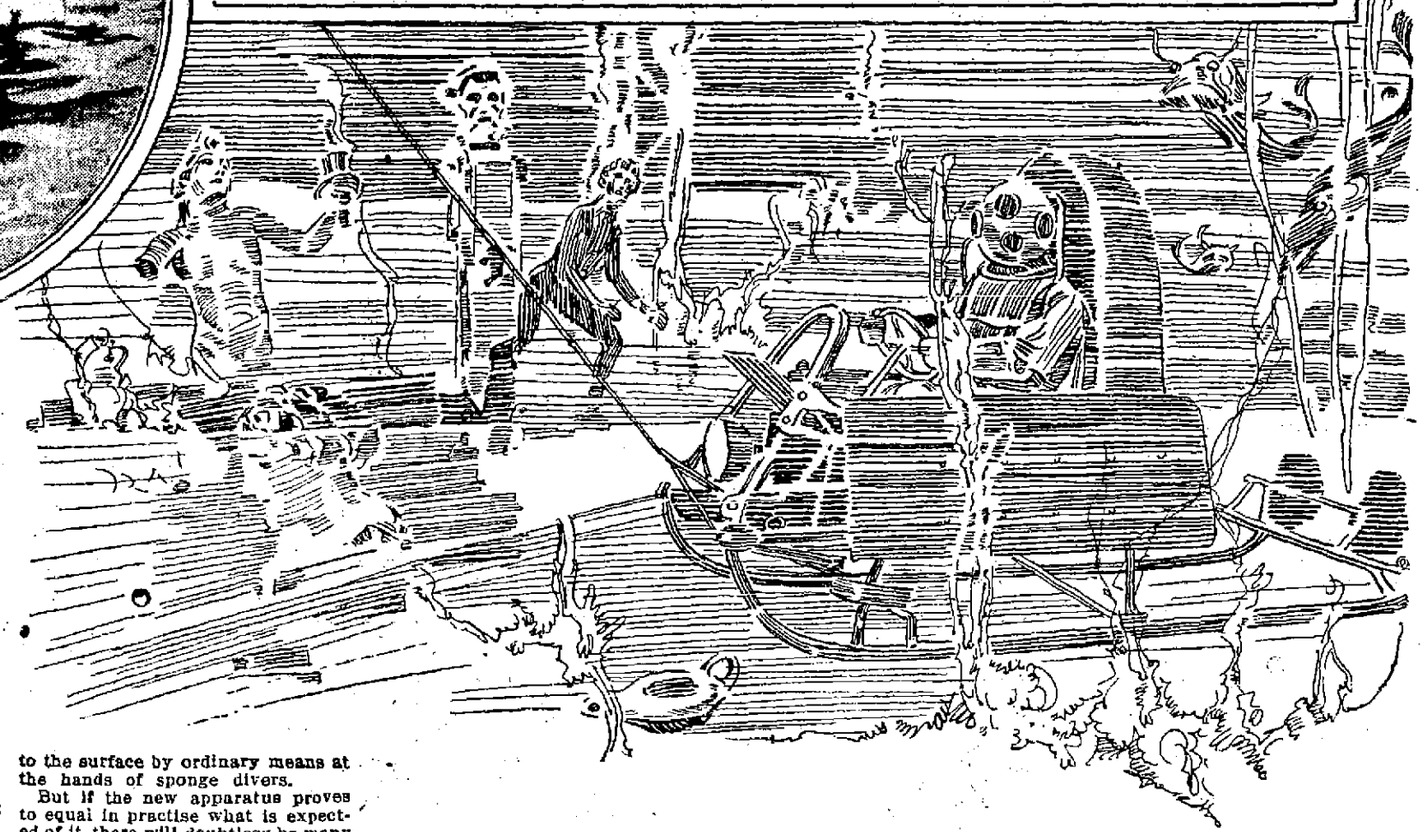
This new system of deliberately, safely and practicably going after riches dumped on the sea bottom was invented and perfected for the use of an expedition organized to further search the ocean's bottom off the coast of Tunis for priceless objects of ancient Greek art lost there by the wreck of a ship more than two thousand years ago. Within the last two years Greek sponge fishermen in the comparatively shallow waters three miles from shore brought up scores of bronze statues, marble busts and columns and other interesting and valuable objects which scientists agreed probably represented loot obtained in a Roman raid upon some Greek temple or palace.

The wreck of this ancient galley lies at a depth of 125 feet, and all about it lies a mass of marble columns with their bases and capitals—treasure too heavy to be brought to the surface by ordinary means at the hands of sponge divers.

But if the new apparatus proves to equal in practise what is expected of it, there will doubtless be many more calls upon it. Probably it will be seized upon by the American expedition which is preparing to try and recover an item of $7,000,000 in gold, silver and precious stones which has rested on the ocean's bottom in the Mona passage between the islands of Porto Rico and Santo Domingo since September 23, 1597.

This was the value of the cargo of the Spanish galleon Santa Margherita, which sailed on that date for Spain from the port of Santo Domingo, and was wrecked.

Other charted ocean treasures are almost too numerous to mention. The coast of Ireland is so dotted with them that the Green Isle has been dubbed "Treasure Ireland."



How it is expected that the latest diving machine will solve the problem of bringing up the almost priceless ancient Greek art objects lost in the wreck of a Roman galley off the coast of Tunis 2,000 years ago.

How Parisian Modistes Have Drawn Upon the Balkan Holocaust for the Latest Fashions

All is grist which comes to the mills of fashion. The modistes of "gay Paree" have already drawn upon the gastrous conflict now raging in the Balkans for their latest creations, using as models the uniforms worn by the contending soldiers.

How closely they have followed the styles in question will be seen by examining the accompanying photographs in connection with the sketches. The Turks, the Servian, the Bulgarian and the Montenegrin soldier dress all been used for the purpose and French women will be able to show their sympathies for any one of the conflicting nations by wearing a costume corresponding to the uniform worn by its soldiers.

Trouserettes are a feature of two of the designs shown, but a tight skirt answers the purpose in the case of the remaining two.

In adapting the soldier's uniform the military touch has very cleverly been eliminated, and it is only by actually comparing these new ladies' costumes with the uniform which suggested it that their source may be recognized.

Several of these latest creations have already made their appearance on the Paris boulevards.

HENRY MOEHRING FORMERLY OF THIS CITY IS PLAINTIFF IN CASE

WAS FORMERLY MEMBER OF MERCHANTS' BAND

INJURED IN BOILER SHOP OF BOVAIRD SUPPLY CO AT INDEPENDENCE

Lima friends of Henry J. Moehring, former Limaite who is now a resident of Independence, Kansas, will be interested in a damage suit in which he is plaintiff that was tried at Independence during the week and in which he won a verdict, according to information received here Saturday morning. The case will be taken to higher court by the insurance company interested.

Mr. Moehring was originally a resident of St. Marys and came to this city a number of years ago, residing in Lima for several years. He is a musician and while here played slide trombone in the Merchants' Band and in the opera house orchestra. He also followed the trade of a boiler maker in this city, being employed for some time at the Locomotive works. Concerning his suit, the Independence Star publishes the following:

"The case of H. J. Moering vs. the Boviard Supply Co., in which the plaitiff asks for $10,000 for injuries to his left hand, while in the employ of the defendant company, occupied the time of the district court yesterday.

"Moehring was employed by the Boviard company and was putting a patch on a boiler, when the piece of steel that he was drilling in order to prepare it for riveting to the boiler, turned in such a way as to catch his hand against the drill standard, cutting off his forefinger and injuring another finger. F. J. Fritch is the plaintiff's attorney and W. E. Ziegle and S. H. Piper represent the defense.

"While the Boviard Supply is the nominal defendant, an accident insurance company is really the party interested, and it is because of this that Mr. Zeigler, attorney for the insurance company is in the case. The Boviard Supply insures all its employes in this company and one of the terms of the contract is that no cases shall be compromised without the consent of the insurance company. It is said that the Boviard company is anxious to settle but cannot without a trial. The accident occurred in the Independence shop of the suply company and the plaintiff is a resident of this city

"After the evidence was submitted the jury went out to the plant to inspect the drill."

"MUTT AND JEFF"

SCHEDULED TO OPEN A NEW OPERA HOUSE AT MINSTER SUNDAY NIGHT.

Minster, O., Dec. 7.— The musical comedy "Mutt and Jeff", which played at the Faurot in Lima Friday evening, has been secured to open the new Minster opera house Sunday evening. The company plays in St. Marys Saturday evening and will come to Minster on a specal car. Sunday here and then open what is considered one of the coziest little theaters in this section.

Quite a large number of tickets for the opening night have been sold and it is expected that the "dedication' of the house will be in the presence of a large crowd.

CAN'T GET MEN EMPLOYERS CRY

FEW MEN AT THE OLD GRAMM MOTOR PLANT

WHERE THE BULK OF WORK IS NOW BEING DEVOTED TO NEW MODELS.

"We can't get the men," is the cry of our big industrials when questioned regarding pay rolls for December and the new year to come. One factory head told The News he had employment agents on the public square trying to land men.

Inquiry regarding present activity at the Gramm-Willys plant not from official circles, however, develops, that only about 200 men are on the pay roll there at this time, and that the plant is largely engaged in making parts for the Garford truck, shipments being sent from here to Elyria. Little or nor assembling of the old Gramm trucks is being done. Progressive Association officials are being urged to get into touch with John N. Willys, as the local management here claims they cannot secure sufficient men to mann the plant, which it is estimated, should have not less than eight hundred mechanics on the pay roll in order to make it properly pay on its present value.

Plenty of Horses The Brokers Say.

Real estate brokers in answer to the complaint of employers that there are not sufficient houses available in Lima claim there are between seventy-five and one hundred available for rentals right now. There is little demand for residences at $20 to $40 a month, but a strong demand on houses renting from $10 to $15 which supply is very limited.

Small Industries Enjoying Big Trade.

The smaller industries of the city are having a good market and gradually adding men, reports in financial circles assert. The Power Gas Producing company is getting a big market for its engines and is oversold bankers say, and looking for men. The Crucible Steel company, which took over the old Humane Horse Shoe company's plant, later the Drop Forge company is well on its feet and doing a nice business making automobile and other machine plants. Its output is now being taken largely by the Gramm-Bernstein and other plants in the city. A sale of the old Drop Forge stock was made the other day at par in trade, while it was reported in bank circles that an owner of $3,500 worth of this old stock who had paid several new financing assessments, disposed of his block at $300, or less than ten per cent. The men now interested in this plant are practical and hustlers, and it is believe it is destined to grow rapidly during the new year.

A Few Deals in Prospect.

There are a number of rumors of deals for real estate in the business district, but they are not ripe for publication. Several hens are on but are being held in confidence.

Cease Giving Hypocritical Christmas Gifts

By Mrs. AUGUST BELMONT, President of the Spug Club, a Society For the Prevention of Useless Giving

ARE you a giver of Christmas gifts? If you are do you give them in the true spirit of generosity or in the hope that you may GET PRESENTS OR FAVORS IN RETURN? If that is the way you have been offering holiday remembrances you should rebel against this HYPOCRISY.

The nonsensical idea of giving a Christmas gift that is not offered with the WHOLE HEART must be discontinued. This should be especially true where the working girl is concerned. She should PUT HER FOOT DOWN on all the usual Christmas time schemes for raising money with which to buy gifts for those "higher up."

If you are a working girl and in the future a shop or store collector should approach you for the customary Christmas donation for the foreman, floorwalker or other official rebuff the collector with the rejoinder, "I DON'T BELIEVE IN GIVING USELESS CHRISTMAS PRESENTS."

* * *

THE EVIL HAS BEEN GROWING WITH EACH SUCCEEDING CHRISTMAS UNTIL THE POOR WORKING GIRLS—YES, THE BOYS AND MEN ALSO, WHO CAN ILL AFFORD IT—ARE TAXED SOMETIMES AS MUCH AS A WEEK'S SALARY FOR USELESS GIFTS TO THEIR "BOSSES," WHICH ARE GIVEN AS A MATTER OF COURSE AND NOT THROUGH ANY SENTIMENT. SUBORDINATES SHOULD NOT BE FORCED TO CONTRIBUTE THIS BIT OF PETTY GRAFT IN ORDER TO REMAIN IN THE GOOD GRACES OF THEIR SUPERIORS.

* * *

Even among friends the evil of giving Christmas gifts is being OVERDONE TO AN ALARMING DEGREE. It seems as though we endeavor to give the most useless gifts possible only to find that some one else has discovered something more useless to send us in return. "Give to receive" seems to be THE FALSE MOTTO of most of us.

NO RACE SUICIDE THERE

Gen. E. Russ—I'd ask your family to dine with us, but I'm afraid it would be asking too much.

Benedict—Well, rather; there's 14 of us.

TO ADDRESS BOYS.

Prof. A. K. Hall, of the Lima High school faculty, will address the first of a winter season series of Sunday meetings for boys, from 2:30 to 3:15 o'clock. Supplementing the principal address, boys who attended the recent boys' conference at Elyria will give brief accounts of their trip. Those who attended the conference are James Fletcher, Earl Grant, Earl Hall and Hobart Mumaugh. The Watermelon Jubilee Singers will entertain the youngsters with several selections.

CONSTIPATED

TASTE, SMELL AND HEARING RESTORED

The thousands who suffer the miseries of colds and catarrh and claim they have never found a cure can get instant relief by simply anointing the nostrils with Ely's Cream Balm.

Unlike internal medicines which upset the stomach, or strong snuffs which only aggravate the trouble, this cleansing, healing, antiseptic Balm instantly reaches the seat of the trouble, stops the nasty discharge, clears the nose head and throat, and brings back the sense of taste, smell and improves the hearing. More than this, it strengthens the weakened and diseased tissues, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble. This remedy will cure a cold in a day, and prevent its becoming chronic or resulting in catarrh.

Nasal catarrh is an inflammation of the membrane lining the air passages, and cannot be reached by mixtures taken into the stomach, nor can it be cured by snuffs and powders which only cause additional irritation. Don't waste time on them. Get a 50-cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and after using it for a day you will wish you had tried it sooner.

Mothers should give the children Ely's Cream Balm for colds and croup. It is perfectly harmless, and pleasant to take.

AUTO BLANKS HERE.

Chief Vermillion of the city police department, Saturday morning received application blanks for 1913 auto licenses, including blanks for chauffeurs' and drivers' licenses. Those desiring to apply for the 1913 licenses to the state auditor may secure the blanks at police headquarters on east High street. At the beginning of each year there is a grand rush to secure licenses and in mailing the application blanks on December 1st, the auditor contemplates averting the rush next year.
